

Long Run View of the Returns to Education in Colombia

jhon j mora

Universidad Icesi, Colombia

jjmora@icesi.edu.co

Abstract:

This article shows that the returns to education in Colombia were around 10% in the period 2007–2016 with eight age cohorts, which is similar to the economic returns to education achieved in high-income national economies in 2014 (10%). High private returns to education suggest opportunities for cost-sharing and new financing models of education in Colombia, providing policy makers an opportunity to improve the quality of education in Colombia.

Keywords: Human Capital, Education, labor economics

JEL Codes: J24, I26, I20, J01